O'Hare Noise Compatibility Commission Names Brendan McLaughlin Executive Director

Des Plaines, Ill., March 17, 2010—The O'Hare Noise Compatibility Commission has appointed Brendan McLaughlin as executive director of the inter-governmental agency dedicated to reducing aircraft noise affecting communities near O'Hare International Airport.

“Brendan is a dynamic leader with a proven track record of successfully managing complex projects,” said Arlene J. Mulder, ONCC chairperson and mayor of Arlington Heights. “His diverse experience in public administration, transportation and land use development will play a vital role in our aviation and environmental advocacy efforts,” she continued.

McLaughlin's experience includes a 10-year career with the city of Naperville, Ill., where he served as business group leader for the transportation, engineering and development team and also was the city's liaison to the Naperville Development Partnership that oversaw the recruitment of several corporate headquarters located along Interstate 88.

McLaughlin also managed development of residential and mixed-use master planned communities in California's Central Valley that included construction of a new highway interchange. Most recently, he was city administrator for the United City of Yorkville, Ill.

“We know Brendan's management expertise and ability to negotiate projects to successful completion will strengthen our partnership among ONCC members, the city of Chicago, Chicago Department of Aviation, Federal Aviation Administration, airlines, pilots, air traffic controllers and other aviation stakeholders to significantly reduce the impact of aircraft noise,” said Mulder.

ONCC, composed of 45 communities and school districts, is nationally recognized as a leading community-based organization that strives to reduce the impact of aircraft noise through residential and school sound insulation programs and to reduce aircraft noise, whenever possible, at its source.
